Happy New Year 2024

Wishing you and your family endless blessings this year!!
May the new beginnings fill your life with magical moments.

I hope your holidays were wonderful & filled with love & happiness. Mine couldn't have been any happier, as I was blessed with my first great granddaughter, Sophia Kay. She is absolutely precious.

Just a reminder our first class is the Valentine's Day 10-minute table runner starts Jan. 20th from 10-1.

Class price includes laser precut appliques, background & backing fabric. If you are unable to attend the class, kits are available on the website.

February's class will be "Embellishing an Heirloom Baby or Lap quilt with Chenille-it Blooming Bias. Class is scheduled for Feb. 17th from 10-2. Click on the link to register.

January is usually the time for new resolutions.

Most of us quilters usually say “I’m not buying any more fabric until I use up my stash.” or “I’m not starting any more projects until I finish all the ones I’ve already started”. But with all the new fabric and quilt designs, that’s practically impossible for some of us.

As a new shop owner, I don’t really have a stash, there’s a store full of bolts of fabric. But I’m definitely in the ‘starting more projects’ category. I start creating new quilt patterns this time of the year. I’ll be working on a project and then another fantastic idea comes to mind, and the original pattern seems to get put aside. Although most of the time, they eventually get completed.

My true difficulty is writing newsletters and blogs. It just seems that when it’s time to sit down and write, I don’t know what you’re interested in reading. Is it tips & techniques? Is it upcoming classes or quilt patterns? We all get way too many weekly emails with information that’s been repeated so many times over from different sources. So I would appreciate any suggestions you can provide to make my newsletters more enjoyable & more informative.

Don’t forget about the free block patterns from Quilt Block Mania. There is a different theme each month by a group of some of your favorite designers, as well as new pattern designers. Check out the blog page for more information. January’s theme is “Party”
